

ABSTRACT

It is an object of the present invention to provide a method for effectively regenerating bone, and more specifically to provide a method for regenerating bone that is capable of treating patients suffering from bone defect or bone injury. The present invention provides a method for regenerating bone, which comprises culturing and/or transplanting mesenchymal cells in the coexistence of epithelial cells.